TRADE JOURNALS

Condemn Advertisements in Reports of the Bureau of American Republics.

Attention of Congress to Be Called to the Matter-McKinley in His Message Will Devote More Attention to Alaska Than Has Been Given Hitherto.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The practice of the bureau of American republics in publishing advertisements in its official publications against which considerable complaint has been made by the trade journals of the country, will be called to the attention of congress at its coming session. The trade journals complain of the practice as an unfair competition on the part of the government.

The latest cause for irritation is a recent publication by the bureau entitled "Commercial Directory of the American Republics," of which there will be two volumes of about 2,500 pages each. It is estimated that the advertising contained in the bulletins of the bureau and in the commercial directory will amount to $30,000.

The practice of canvassing for advertisments for the bureau publications was originated by the former head of the bureau, Mr. Clinton Furbush, and has never been legally prohibited. It is defended on the score of necessity, the appropriation for the bureau being less than its expenses.

The power plant of the U. S. Electric Lighting Co. took fire early Friday morning. The lights in the greater portion of the city were out. After working on the flames for half an hour the firemen succeeded in getting the flames under control. The building is badly gutted and a large portion of cordon around the Tribune. the machinery damaged.

The president in his message will, it is expected, devote more attention to Alaska than has been given to the big territory heretofore since its purchase. It is known that the executive will recommend speedy legislation to secure the best possible government for Alaska and that he will also take occasion to point out the difficulties which the people are under and will urge that something should also be done to protect the property of the government. In this connection he will allude to the fact that the government is losing large sums because there is no way of protecting the timber from indiscriminate use. Commissioner Herman, of the general land office, has submitted information on this point to the president and has also taken occasion to recommend some radical changes in the laws pertaining to the permit system for cutting timber in other sections. At present large companies and corporations are cutting timber under the permit system supposedly for use in the mines, but the commisioner has information that train load er train load of lumber has from the forest and placed in the lumberyards in various cities and towns and never used for mining purposes at all. tion of the forest.

Will Be Made to the Klondike Regions in the Early Spring.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 26.-J. W. Wilson, general manager of the Alaska Commercial Co., of San Francisco, who is at the Galt house, has just returned from Alaska, having made many trips to that country in the past several years. Mr. Wilson says that while the people in the east and middle west have a dim idea of the immense number of people that will make their way to the Klondike regions early next spring, yet they have really but a faint conception of the great number of persons who will join the rush. He says that the rush to the gold fields of California was nothing to what the wild stampede to the Klondike will be the coming spring. Already thousands of people in every state are getting ready for the trip. His advice to these prospectors is that they go prepared to withstand the rigors of the following winter, especially as there will be no reason to fear a scarcity of food. Both Mr. Wilson and Mr. Schless, the superintendent of the company, had with them specimens of the yellow metal in lumps large enough picked up from the ground. Both Mr. Wilson and Mr. Schloss left Wednesday night for New York, but will return in a few days. The boats to be built for them in Jeffersonville, Ind., will be shipped to the mouth of the Yukon and there put together.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 26.-Some 4,500 people witnessed the football game between the Cincinnati university team and the Indian team from Carlisle. Pa., Thursday afternoor. Twenty-two brawny athletes struggled for two hours in a drizzling rain upon a field soft and slimy with sticky mud. The contest ended in a victory for the Indians by a score of 10 to 0. The university boys did not score, but they made it awfully warm for the Carlisle Destructive Fire in Pensacola. PENSACOLA, Fla., Nov. 26 .- About $100,000 worth of property was burned Thursday morning by a fire that was started by an incendiory in the old Congress building, which was used by several firms as a warehouse for the storage of hay and feed stuffs. The fire spread from this building to Carbb's lumber yard, the old freight house of the Louisville & Nashville railroad and the company's new freight house. The latter was filled to the roof with merchandise that had been pouring in since the removal of quarantine restrictions. All of the contents of buth freight depots was destroyed.

FIGHTING AGAIN.

More Disorders in the Lower House of the Reichrath-An Attempt Made to Assault

Dr. Abrahamovich, the President. VIENNA, Nov. 27.-The disorder in the lower house of the Reichsrath was so accentuated Friday that a strong detachment of police had to be called in to preserve order. When the president of the house, Dr. Abrahamovich, entered he was greeted with vociferous shouts of "Get out." The Leftists rose to their feet in a body, many of the deputies shrieked wildly, and an indescribable tumult followed.

During the tumult a social democrat, Herr Berner, made a rush for the president and a lively fist fight followed between Berner and the house attendants, who attempted to protect the chair.

Thereupon another social democrat, Herr Resel, jumped upon the ministerial bench and, hurrying to the presidential chair, seized the papers which were lying on the president's desk and tore them to pieces, while other social democrats hastened to Herr Berner's assistance, occupied the tribune and demanded satisfaction for the attendants' pummelling of Herr Berner. President Abrahamovich was compelled to flee.

Subsequently the social democrats and other deputies indulged in a free fight, and Herr Berner was ejected from the house.

In the meantime a detachment of 70 police arrived in the house, and an officer in command called upon the social democrats to withdraw from the presidential platform They, however, refused to withdraw, and resisted the attempts of the police to eject them. They were eventually removed forcibly and singly. The police then made a

The authorities then caused all the lobbies of the house to be filled with police; the gates were closed and the building was guarded by a strong police

The session of the house in the meanwhile was suspended.

The opposition leaders held another meeting Friday evening and decided, it is said, to impeach the ministry. Workmen took but little part in the street demonstrations. They intend to organize demonstrations on their own account which will probably be more serious in their results.

Large crowds gathered Friday evening about the University building and the parliament house, owing to an announcement that the students intended to make a demonstration. This, however, was prevented by the police who promptly dispersed the gatherings. More than 40 arrests were made. There was no violent resistance.

The students resisted with sticks. The police inspector was severely injured by a kick from a horse; another was thrown from his horse and so bad- is put on trial for her life. It is underly hurt that it was necessary to remove him to a hospital. A few students and some citizens received slight injuries. Not until nearly 11 o'clock was quiet restored.

A serious riot is reported at Gratz, the capital city of Styria. It appears that the students and a large body of workmen attacked three newspaper offices, doing some damage. The police, with the assistance of the troops, have restored order, and 20 arrests have been made of the ringleaders.

Gov. Brady's Warning to Prospective Gold Seekers in Alaska.

Experience Needed to Be Successful in Min ing-Take a Year's Supply of Food With You-The Venture Will Require From Three to Five Years.

Kokomo, Ind., Nov. 29.—Gov. John G. Brady, of Alaska, who was visiting in this vicinity, has written a letter of advice to the editor of the Union Dispatch of this place, that he wishes all Indianians and others interested to read and profit by. The letter, under date of November 7, from Sitka, is full of interest. He says:

"Before determining to come to Alaska to seek for gold consider well the dark side. The country is mountainous, immense glaziers filled the valleys, most all the streams have swift currents, a large part of the surface is covered with moss, which thaws out but little more than a foot in summer. In winter everything becomes solid and prospecting must be done with fire. Scrape off the moss, start a fire, and when it dies out scrape out the thawed earth, repeating the operation indefinitely. The means of transportation are few and costly. Remember that the mos quito comes to full development in northern latitudes.

"A man needs experience to be sucessful in mining. My advice to the man who has made up his mind to come to Alaska is to bring a year's supplies, and if he is not experienced in mining, to work for wages the first year. He s then in school and will receive wages enough to save a good sum beyond expenses. When the next bodies as eligible to election to the strike is reported he will be able to buy his outfit and secure a claim for himself. MARTIN THORN

Will Testify in His Own Behalf and Accuse Mrs. Nack of the Murder of Wm. Gulden-

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—There is every probability that the case of Martin Thorn, on trial for the murder of Wm. Guldensuppe, will go to the jury not later than Wednesday next, and possibly Tuesday night. Wm. F. Howe, aspect of the streets became more Thorn's lawyer, has promised to finish his side of the case on Monday. Thorn will testify in his own behalf and accuse Mrs. Nack of killing Guldensuppe. threatened the government with revo- Other witnesses for the defense may lution and Count Badeni, the primier, be Mrs. Zeigler, of West Farms, of whom it is alleged, Mrs. Nack, with Guldensuppe, wanted to hire a house, the negotiations failing because the house did not have a sewer, and Herman Nack, Mrs. Nack's husband. It is a question whether Nack will be allowed to testify against his wife, when she stood that after the defense closes Mrs. Nack will be called by the prosecution in rebuttal to repeat her confession and accuse Thorn of the murder.

The following statement, signed by Martin Thorn, was published in an evening paper Saturday:

. When I go on the stand Monday morning I will tell the true and complete story of the crime for which I am now being tried for my life. My lawyer has advised me to conceal nothing, and with the help of God I will not. "Martin Thorn is just a man, with vices and life just as strong within him as in any of those who say he sinned because he loved an unworthy woman-loved and trusted and shielded her until he was in the very shadow of the electric chair; loved her until she swore herself from the consequences of her own actthe killing of the man whom she said she feared because of his knowledge of other crimes.

"Augusta Nack planned and accomplished the murder of William Galdensuppe. When I got to the Woodside Cottage that Saturday morning she met me at the door, and said: have got Guldensuppe up stairs. He is dead. "She had shot him in the face and stabbed him in the breast, she said. I was not even in the house at the time but in the doorway, and she was out of sight of the people on the street at the time, half way up stairs. I knew nothing of her purpose that day. She had asked when I arrived she told me that she had killed Guldensuppe and that all her trouble was over. For a long time I hardly knew what to do. Nrs. "You have got to help me get rid of it," she said, "or both of us will get into trouble. All you have got to do is to help. At last I helped her to carry the body to the bath tub. It was very heavy. Guldensuppe was dead. He was not breathing when we put him in the bath tub. Mrs. Nack did the cutting while I held the body. First she cut the head off, then she took the saw and sawed the trunk two, and then legs. She was afraid the saw would go through the wrong place in the body, but she finally got the right place. She mentioned at the time that it was a good thing she knew something about surgery, or else it would be impossible to get rid of the body properly Before she cut the body up the clothes were taken off. Afterward the body was rolled up in the oilcloth and cloth that Mrs. Nack bought at Mrs. Rigers'. Then we talked over the plans to get rid of the body. She arranged for the surrey drive and the throwing away of the pieces. She gave the money to hire the surrey. She gave me the money to hire the Woodside cottage, where she said she was to start a place to treat women who were in trouble and

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 29.—Acting Attorney General Carter has received word from Attorney General Fitzgerald to the effect that after the present legal quibble has been decided he will advise Warden Hale to carry out the execution of Theodore Durrant regard less of any new legal proceeding that may be instituted by Durrant's attorneys. Durrant will be re-sentenced as soon as the controversy now pending is settled, after which the attorney general of the state believes no legal step can accomplish further delay in the proposed execution of Durrant.

ROYAL DECREES

Granting Autonomy to Cuba and Porto

MADRID, Nov. 27.-The Official Gazette published Saturday morning the royal decrees granting autonomy to Cuba and Porto Rico, thus removing the anxiety that had begun to be expressed on all sides as the result of the government's reticence and unexplained delay.

The scheme of autonomy is as fol-

Are Preparing to Enter the Alaska Trade-A Line of Steamers to Be Built.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27.—The Rothschilds, through the San Francisco bouse of Liebes & Co., are about to enter the Alaska trade.

Four steamers are being built in sections by W. H. Brick & Co., the owners of the California machine works. When this contract is fulfilled the machinery and timbers will be sent to Dutch Harbor, near Unalaska, to be set up. The firm will then build nine barges in sections to follow the material for steamboat building, and the barges will likewise be put together at Dutch Harbor.

All of this work is being done for the Alaska Exploration Co., which was incorporated about two months ago with a capital of $1,000,000.

Isaac Litch, in speaking of this project, said that it is proposed to have the steamers and barges ready for business when the ice breaks in the Yukon in June. He said that the Rothschilds are interested in the venture, which was arranged in London five months ago, and there is practically unlimited capital behind it. Besides doing a general transportation business the company will establish trading stations and thoroughly explore the country.

To Kill Pardons Board.

Columbus, O., Nov. 27.—Word comes from Akron that Senator J. Park Alexander has prepared a bill to abolish the state board of pardons. In place of the state board, Senator Alexander's bill establishes local boards in each county, each board to have jurisdiction over all applications made for pardons of convicts sent to the penitentiary from its county.

Trotting Meet in Louisville in 1898. LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 27.—The event of the trotting meet to be given by the Louisville Driving and Fair association in 1898, will be the Kentucky matron stakes of $10,000, for foals of 1896. This stake has been divided and will be contested both next year and year following. Of · the money offered $2,000 will go to the twoyear-olds that trot and $1,000 to the two-year-olds that pace; while the remaining $7,000 will go to the three-yearolds that trot in 1899. The entries have been remarkably goos, and this stake next year will be one of the best favored of the season.

HORRIBLE STORY

Rico-The Governments to Be Composed Of Murder and Mutilation of Americans in the Congo Free States.

> The Fiends Hacked the Dead Bodies to Pieces and Distributed Them Among the Attacking Party-Hearts of the Victims Cut Out and Burned.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29 .- A startling and horrible story of the killing of two Washingtonians and the mutilation of their bodies by the natives of the Conhere in a letter to Mr. Leo Harmon, of 1723 Ninth street, Northwest. The men were members of a party who, during November and December, 1894, and January, 1895, went from this city to enlist in the Belgian army for service in the cluded Edward Thornton, a commis- modest, and the manager said to him: sioned officer of the national fencibles, employed in the war department; Lindsay G. Burke, Frank Batchelor, Harry R. Andrews, Barry Sparlin and a Mr. Mellin or Mellen, who was at one time a non-commissioned officer of the United States army. All except Thornton and Mellin were members of the national guard of the district.

The information received by Mr. Harmon is that Burke and a party of 50 natives who were sent out to dislodge a band of dwarfs who had revolted, were ambushed and killed. An Arab who was with the command, but who was some distance off at the time of the ambuscade, states that he knows Burke was dead before the natives reached him, and that the most hideouslooking little man he ever saw walked up and cut Burke's head off with one blow of a knife. The chief then began to slice pieces off his legs and arms and to distribute them among his follow-

There were so many of the fiends that the pieces were very small, and before they had concluded there was a free fight to see who could get the little remaining. In some manner the dwarfs became alarmed and left the had command of another detachment, sent out on the same errand, arrived a few hours after the natives departed. Windeey gathered up the remains of Burke and buried them. When Windeey learned the strength of the rebels he hurried back to Michau and notified the commandant of the post.

The other Washingtonian who lost his life was killed on March 1, when the troops under the command of Baron Dhanis revolted near Kabanbarre and assassinated a number of officers of their regiments, among them being Mellin. The body of Mellin was butchered almost beyond recognition, his heart having been cut out and burned so that his courage could not again be used against the rebels by the whites. It is their belief that unless the heart is burned and the ashes scattered to the four winds the spirit of the man descends to his brethren.

Thornton is said to be in a very prearious situation at Basaka but a relief expedition has been sent to his rescue. Gage, another American, is very sick with the fever at Nyangine. The killing of Burke and Mellin occurred in December, 1896.

"We want to find a certain blue envelope, Matthews," the detective began. "It was thrown into this basket by Mr. Strong about a month ago. Can you really going any further with your in-

"And gives you a little something for keeping the stuff for him," interrupted Hendricks. "Yes, sir," the servant nodded.

"Has he been here lately?" zir. I remember-"

"Could you take Mr. Whidby and myself to his place?" said the detective. "We might be in time to keep our bit of evidence from being made up into new paper."

"Yes, sir, without any trouble. His shop is on First street, under the bridge. It is a pretty tough place, sir, but we can take the cars and get down quick enough."

"I see I am to be of no further assistance," jested Miss Delmar.

"I didn't quite think you would care to soil your skirts in a ragman's shop,' replied the detective. "But as soon as we get a clew, Mr. Whidby may bring the news to you. We'd better be going, Hendricks and Matthews started out t once. Whidby lingered in the draw 1g-room with Miss Delmar.

"If you have the time, you might stay ere until we return," said Whidby I am sure we shan't be long."

"I'll waitan hour, anyway," the young lady promised. "I am dying to know if you accomplish anything. But run on; they are waiting for you, and here comes the car." In ten minutes the three men had reached the bridge spanning the murky river and were entering the shop indicated by Matthews. "We must tell him exactly what we want," Hendricks whispered to Whidby at the door. "He hasn't a very honest face, and if he thinks we have lost something of intrinsic value he may tell us a lot of lies. Usually they do all they can to aid a detective."

"Ah, I see," answered Whidby. "I should have blundered there if I had been alone."

The dealer, a little Jew, with a very crafty face, came from behind a counter piled up high with sacks of rags and

"What can I do for you, gentlemen?"

In a few words Hendricks explained what they were searching for.

"Ah! and you want to catch him, eh? Well, I hope you can." said the Jew. "I think I know the bags I got from dere. They are up in the loft. I will like mad. I passed you at the carriage throw them down, and you can look through them here.

"You are very good," said Hendricks; "that's exactly what we want."

The Jew ran up a ladder through a hole in the ceilng, and in a moment three sacks filled with old paper tumbled down at their feet. Hendricks pointed to a clean place on the floor, and said to Matthews: "Shake them out." Matthews emptied one of the bags in a heap, and Whidby bent over it.

"No doubt about the stuff being from our house," he said. "Here is a note addressed to me, and there are some old bills of uncle's." But after five minutes' search he declared he saw no envelope which looked like the one he had in mind. The second bag was searched without success, but the third had hardly been opened before Whidby picked | ful. She lost a child a year ago in child-

"What is it" Whidby questioned.

"I den't know myself," said the detective. "I have seen something like this before, but I can't tell where. By Jove! it will drive me crazy if I don't make it out. There is something about this envelope that is familiar, but it eludes me like the memory of a nightmare. But I'll get it after awhile. Leave me, you and your man. I'll walk back alone. I want to tussle with the to any conclusion."

CHAPTER XIV.

Half an hour afterwards the detective arrived at his hotel, and went up to his room. His face still wore a look of deep perplexity. He sat down at a window and stared at the envelope steadily for ten minutes. Then there was a rap at the door. It was a servant, to say that Capt. Welsh was downstairs, and that he was anxious to see him.

"Send him up," said Hendricks, and he put the envelope into his pocket. He picked up a newspaper two or three days old, and was hidden behind it when the captain rapped.

"Come in," the detective called out. "I am sorry to disturb you," begar Welsh, "but the truth is we are making so little headway that the mayor's peo-I ple are showing a good deal of impatience. Mrs. Roundtree says we are entirely too slow, and she is laying it all on me and my men. The mayor himself has just left my office. Of course, I could not tell him what you suspected about his daughter, and-"

"I should think not, captain, since you yourself don't know what I do or do not suspect." And Hendricks threw his paper on the floor.

"Of course, of course; but aren't you vestigations up there? I thought when I told you that I spent the night in front

Hendricks broke into a low laugh bent forward and rubbed his hands be tween his knees.

"You didn't see me, captain, that night. We were both a pretty pair of fools. I recognized you in the flaming "Just a day or so before the murder, disk of your eigar a block away. You looked like a head-light, and I made for you as soon as I turned the corner, I knew the gate must be near where you stood."

"What do you mean?" cried Welsh, in

"I was in Mrs. Walters' room from half-past nine till ten o'clock that night and made a thorough examination of her belongings."

"Why, I was on watch at that time! You could not have gone in at the front, and my men were in the rear." Hendricks smiled broadly.

"I never go in at a back gate if I can help it. I was the driver of the cab that took the mayor home from his office that night. I overheard him ask the fellow to wait for him. I called the man into a barroom, explained who I was, promised him five dollars, exchanged coats and hats with him and took his cab. Of course, I wore my whiskers. I would not be without them when I go driving on cool nights. I catch cold easily, and they protect my

"I pulled up when you waved me When the mayor got out at the side door of his house I took my fare, explained that a piece of my harness had given way and was tinkering with a strap under the belly of the horse when the mayor went in to his supper. Then I ran my rig out of sight behind a sort of woodshed and went up the back stairs to Mrs. Walters' room. I knew it by her dresses in the closets."

"What were you looking for?"

"Books, chiefly. I had found out that she had purchased a box of them in New York the other day and I wanted to see them. I thought they might be treatises on hypnotism and things in that outlandish line; but they were only modern yellow-backed novels, translations of Emile Gaboriau and detective stories by Doyle and Anna K. Green. They put me on a new scent. A new light broke on me. I felt like a fool. I went down, got on my cab and drove off gate and asked you the time. You told me, and I said I had to catch a train and whipped up my horse."

"I remember. What a blamed fool I was!" said Welsh, with a deep flush. "What did you do next?"

"Turned the cab over to its owner and went and had a private talk with the family physician of the Roundtrees. After that, to use slang, I kicked myself soundly, and in 20 minutes was dogging the footsteps of the distinguished stranger of whom I spoke to

"But don't you think Mrs. Walters had anything to do with the murder?" asked Welsh.

"Nothing at all. Here it is in a nutshell: She will be a mother in about three months. As I have shown you, she dampened the clay with the watering can, made the footmarks by wearing her father's slippers, shot a hole through her sleeve, hid the revolver in the grass and has had a lot of fun out of our careful investigations. If she had dreamt, however, that she herself would be suspected of that murder she would have shown the white feather long ago."

"What are you going to do now?" asked Welsh, completely crestfallen. "I am on quite another line, and am at a standstill. I hardly know what I shall do."

"Can I aid you in any way?" "I think not, now. I shall come round as soon as I find out anything tangible."

CHAPTER XV.

The next morning at nine o'clock Miss Delmar called at Whidby's.

"I have had to run for it," she said, laughingly, as the young man came into the drawing-room. "I had to give papa the slip. He heard that I was out all day yesterday and demanded an explanation. Of course, I refused to tell him anything, and he ordered me not to show myself out of doors to-day. But when I got the telegram from Mr. Hendricks to meet him here at nine I slipped out at the back gate and have run nearly all the way."

Whidby drew her to him and kissed

"You were bound to pull me out of this hole," he said. "A week ago I was nearly crazy with forebodings, but now I really enjoy it."

"I am sure I do, almost," she laughed. 'I wonder if Mr. Hendricks can have discovered anything more? Here he comes now. I heard the gate click. Let me admit him."

She went to the door, and in a moment entered with the detective. "He knows something new," she said, laughingly, to her lover. "I can see it in his eyes." "You certainly don't seem so perplexed as you did when I left you yesterday," said Whidby, as he cordially shook low that wrote it wanted to steer clear of you, I should think," Whidby re-"The bold things are the very ones

we are less likely to suspect, as a rule." said the detective. "But I haven't told you how it came into my hands. My mother, while very old and naturally unsuspicious, has learned a good deal of caution from me, especially where anything pertains in the slightest to my profession; so she did not reply to the note but sent it down here to me. I fell readily into the trap set for her. I could remember no one by the name of Champney, but I flattered myself it was one who knew me better than I did him: so, thinking that my mother's caution in not replying to the note had perhaps caused the writer some inconvenience. I wired my address, and at the same time wrote a cordial note of explanait was born she almost ran her family | tion and apology, which I mailed to the address given.

"This at once excited a suspicion that something was wrong-that some designing person, for reasons of his own, had tricked me into betraying my whereabouts. The telegram had not been returned. That showed that some one at 234 Union street, Brooklyn, had received it and signed for it in due form, or I should have been advised of his failure to do so by the telegraph office here. The letter addressed in the same way had been returned. That proved that Frederick Champney either was not there or wanted me to think he was not, and my curiosity was roused. But, as your case was just then becoming more interesting, I put the letter away for safe keeping, along with the note to my mother, to take up again when I was more at leisure, and dismissed them from my mind. However, as I said just now, there was something strangely familiar about the envelope we found at the rag shop yesterday, and I could not for the life of me tell what it could be. It was not until I had left you and reached my hotel last night that I found out. It was simply the large capital D in the center of the New York postmark, for it corresponded exactly with the big D in the postmark of the letter my mother had received. You smile. You think that a very little thing. Well, so it was; but wait. The D indicated the station at which the letters were posted; they had both been mailed in the same postal district. I know that much, you see, as a starter; but I was not satisfied. I was sure the two envelopes held a better clew between them, and I was bound to have it.

"I lay awake half the night, thinking, thinking, till I got so wrought up I could not reason logically at all. I knew that would do no one any good, so | Chicago Journal. I banished thoughts of all kinds, and was getting into a drowsy state, in fact was almost dropping off, when suddenly an idea popped into my brain.

"I sprang up, lit the gas, and with my magnifying-glass examined the letter which had been returned to me from New York marked: 'Not Delievered.' What do you suppose I discovered? My letter had been steamed and carefully in Italy. A writer sojourning in an Italian city tells how an earthquake announced it-

IT RANG THE BELL. How an Earthquake Was Announced

Late one evening Isoletta and Caterina rushed in upon us in terrified excitement as we sat reading by the light of an oil lamp in the "yellow room;" their faces were of the whiteness of paper. and their eyes had a wild expression of "Signora, what is the matter? Every bell in the house is ringing. Maria Sanctissima, what will become of us!" I must explain that the bells were of the old-fashioned variety, which hang on wires and are pulled by a bell rope. "Per carita, signora, come and see what has happened."

They were so much in earnest that, to calm their fears, we went into the hall. There were the ten bells hung in a row and ringing as though the furies were at the other end of the rope! Ringing of their own accord, apparently, or at least pulled by no visible hand. Of a sudden we became aware that the floors were trembling, the walls were shaking. The whole building moved on its foundations; it swayed from side to side, at first slightly, then further and further, with a slow, rhythmic motion, full of grace and majesty; but we could realize no sensation beyond sickening terror. It was an earthquake. The motion lasted a few seconds, then ceased gradually. Had it continued three seconds longer the tall obelisks, the beautiful campanili, would have fallen.-N. Y. Tribune.

A Few Words About Toads.

A toad's eyes are the only things in nature which could not be represented without using gold. As to toads being poisonous, as the French peasants say, or making warts, as some old people tell us, that is pure nonsense. A PLEASANT FUNERAL:

[Walter Champ in Judge.] Great waves of satisfaction had swept over Darktown and left evidence of the visit on every face, without regard to age, size, shade, sex, character, or previous condition. The cause of this manifest satisfaction which settled everywhere was Brother Sam Johnsing's splendid funeral. The deceased was a deacon in the church, a member of the grand army of the republic, and belonged to eleven distinct and separate lodges, besides having his life insured in two insurance-companies. Each body was represented at the funeral, and there was a dress-parade, a brass band, martial music, and ten carriages of mourners, and four preachers assisted in the service. There were also large quantities of flowers and lamentations.

"It was sech a good funeral," said Sister Jackson, "an' eberybody was dere. I wondah whad de case cost?" "I 'spec' it took mos' all ob his insurance toe pay fo' it," observed Sister Bedinger. "Wasn't de parade fine-an'

THE GOOD LANDLORD.

I sing to you about a man whose memory ong should last: His name was Hiram Morethangood, he lived in Nottoofast; And tho' to save his native land he never drew a sword

He was what all his tenants called a mighty fine landlord. Whene'er a tenant chanced to break a pane

He never used to storm and rave or murmur out "Alas!" sunshine or in rain, if it was at zero, and have them set

No matter if in room or hall the paper should get torn, would not, as some landlords do, complain from night till morn; And if the paint got scarred and soiled, the first thing he would do

Was send and have the painter come and paint the house anew.

No matter if a faucet froze or if got clogged a drain, It made no difference to him; he never would complain. if a tenant short of wood should burn the cellar stairs, make such small repairs. And if a tenant should neglect to close a swinging blind,

And it should be thrown from its place by the fierce winter wind, And tumbling to the walk below some thought of that nasty pool water turns passer-by should kill, He would not say one unkind word, but go and pay the bill. And ere the morning light broke forth he from his bed would rise,

And not with thunder in his tone nor anger in his eyes, But with a rosy shade of joy upon his manly face Would to the tenant go and give a full deed of the place.

-Thomas F. Porter, in N. Y. Sun.

BY GUY A. JAMIESON

UBBIN RIDGE lay sweltering in the hot June sun. The fields of sickly corn gasped and wilted; the patches of parched wheat and oats rattled mournfully as the hot winds swept over them. Nubbin Ridge at best made poor return for the labor put upon her barren sides; and when nature refused to be lavish in dispensing her moisture the harvest was distressingly meager.

Mrs. Louise Long sat in the doorway of her cabin and looked out along the Ridge. Everywhere the rows of yellow stunted corn or patches of dead grain met her eye and filled her heart with dismay. It seemed to her that their own little farm was the worst burned up of all. She turned to where her husband crept along the rows of cotton. As she followed his slow movements back and forth across the field a kind of resentment came into her bosom toward him. "I don't know whatever possessed him to settle on the old clayey Ridge," she complained, giving way to her feelings. "It seems to me some men are born shif'less, an' they jest rotate to shif'less land-the valley would'n' 'a' come any dearer. Little he can ever promise hisself or family; but it's jest Ridge or starve. An' there's that aggervatin' old hen an' her chickens in the garden scratchin' up the last bean I don't know what'll become of us, an' -having once got started she was sure to drift on to her two pet causes of irritation, over which she periodically worried herself into the bed-"an Henry spendin' every cent he can get his hands on fer tobacco, an' the children needin' bread fer their mouths and clothes fer their backs. Shif'less an' dissipated; that's jest what I call it. It's downright sin, he bein' a church member, to throw his money away chewin' of the filthy weed-there's them pigs rootin' up the potatoes. It jest seems everything is agin us. The next thing it'll be a cyclone blowing our house away, or an epidemic killin off the children; an' it might be a providence, fer if things get much worse they'd be better off-Oh, my! it seems I'll burn up, an' it's jest burn, fer the old pool water jest aggervates yer thirst. I'd almost give my soul for a apron, as she shifted her position to take advantage of the breeze that floated lazily along the Ridge, and vigorously plied her turkey-wing fan. "I could put up with it all an' never s word, if Henry'd show any disposition to give up his extravagant and filthy habits. Goin' on ten years since we moved to the Ridge, and if he'd put half the price he's spent fer tobacco in

As he turned him in the little woods pasture to "rustle" a scant supper in the brush he gave him a few gentle pats in lieu of some more substantial expression of good will. The donkey burst into a tired bray, whose mournful cadence struck dire foreboding into Long's already troubled bosom. The cows were waiting at the bars, he would go and buy some more, in and the children not having returned from the fields where they had gone to after the milk vessels and not disturb his wife. But that individual's ear was alert, and, as she caught the sound of as the hoe thumped on the hard ground his footfall, the groans and muttered suffering to which she gave vent was alarming.

Long stopped, listened. hesitated. then stepped into the doorway.

"Lu, I am afraid you have had another bad evening;" and there was tenderness in his voice. "Is there something I can do for you before I go to He always thought it sweet delight to the cows?"

If you'll take me where I can get all the water I can drink, I'll take in washin' an' board you an' the children; an' you can go on spendin' all you make fer tobacco. Oh, I know I'll burn up—what on top side of earth can be keepin' them kids? 'Pears like they know when I'm taken worse an' stay jest to worry me. Henry, do hurry and get the work done."

"Now, Lu, don't you let it fret you," said Long, conciliatingly, as if he felt guilty, and must say something to appease a just wrath; "we'll do the best we can. You'll soon feel better, now that it is growing cool. I'll have one of the boys go down to Stuart's after some water when they come. Yes, an' if you are able, we'll go over to preaching Sunday, an' spend the afternoon with Sullivan; he has the best water in the valley, you remember."

He did not wait for the chafing reply but hastened out in the night to the cow

The following Sunday was a bright day, and the Longs drove over to the valley church. It had been noised abroad that at the conclusion of the sermon there would be a prayer offered for rain, and the house could not acgathered. She had also a suspicion of his intentions and watched him narrowly as they drove along to see if he took his accustomed quid. It gave her a remorseful little twing as she thought of her browbeating, sharp words and ingratitude. She was forced to admit to herself that he was a kind, self-sacrificing husband and, although not a good manager, had done the best he could. She now repented her harshness at his show of reformation. It was dark when the wagon rattled up to the little cabin. An occasional flash of lightning illuminated the clouds on the horizon. "I believe we shall have rain in a day or two, Lu."

"I hope so, if it don't turn out to be a cy-" She would have said cyclone, but checked herself in a little cough. Already she was improving.

Long awoke the next morning with a throbbing pain in his head; his limbs moved heavily and a feeling of lassitude he who lays out everything he can afford was on him. From force of habit he felt lays out more than he can afford. Shadows had gathered thick in the in his pocket for his tobacco. > "It'll be of little use," she thought, strengthens folks in their resolution, to keep busy."

> "Why, what's this?" she said, pickpicions were confirmed. She involuntarily glanced toward the field; she was just in time to see her husband disappear in the brush down the side of a ravine that ran across the farm. "The second time he's stopped this morning. Something must be ailing him." She stood leaning against the hoe, gazing intently at the spot where he had vanished. Five, ten, fifteen minutes passed, and her husband had not returned to the mule that stood patiently in the sun doggedly fighting the flies.

> Her curiosity, not altogether unmixed with fear, was aroused. She dropped the hoe and, still holding the tobacco, started under cover of the patch of corn for the ravine. She entered it and crept along the dry bed toward the spot where Long had disappeared. She had made only a few yards when she stopped and listened. She could hear a mumbling just ahead. She was almost sure it was Henry's voice. What could be the trouble? He must be hurt, and she could scarcely restrain an impulse to rush to his side. What she did was to crawl cautiously some yards further. Only a bush or two separated her from her husband, and she could hear him distinctly.

"Lord help me," he was saying, "give me more faith. I am so weak; I've tried so hard to quit. O Lord, give me strength for Lu's sake. It worries her se to see me throwing my money away, an' it takes from her an' the children. O Lord help me-help me!"

A deep rumbling rolled along the west; hurrying clouds passed under the sun. A silence fell for a time on the ridge; then a breeze came sweeping up the ravine that smelled of rain. > When one of these old sentinels begins to show signs of disease and decay, and year by year grows more attenuated in its branches and weaker in leaf growth and power, we watch it as we watch a friend attacked by a slow, but incurable malady. But remedies are now being discovered for almost every ill of the body, and successful tree surgery is or may be as common as the higher form of that science. A recent number of Garden and Forest discusses the rejuvenescence of old trees, and gives practical directions for effecting it. Directly to the point are two illustrations of the same tree, a venerable oak in the Arnold Arboretum. The first is of a tree with far-reaching branches, but marked by infallible signs of decrepitude, the leafage scanty and the general prospect of life discouraging.

No miracle, not even one of nature's, has been performed. The result is simly one of skillful tree surgery, of intelligent pruning according to the De Car system, which, instead of sending the tree blood long distances through collapsed and withered arteries, contracts the area and applies the nourishing forces in such a way that they can be assimilated and made to promote the growth of all the members.

The process is one which almost any ntelligent farmer or tree owner should be able to apply. "Vigor can be restored to a tree in this condition by shortening all its branches by one-third or one-half their entire length. The only care needed in this operation is to cut back each main branch to a healthy The Hill tax is produced by running lateral branch, which will serve to attract and elaborate by means of its the growth of the branch." GERMANY'S COMMERCE.

Her Relations with Great Britain and Other European Countries.

The imperial statistical office at Berlin has just published a detailed account of the commercial relations of Germany to foreign states in the year 1896. In that year Germany's exports to Great Britain, British India, Australia and Canada amounted in value to 808,000,000 marks, while the imports from the same countries and from the British West Indies amounted to 931,-000,000 marks. To Great Britain alone Germany exported to the value of 715,-000,000 marks, and from Great Britain alone she imported 614,000,000 marks. Very different are the statistics of German trade relations with British India and with Australia. The exports to those destinations amounted to 78,000,-000 marks, while the imports thence reached a value of no less than 270,000,-600 marks. In view of these figures the conclusion is drawn that Germany need not fear in the case of British India and Australia any attempt to hamper her export trade, as she is in a position to retaliate with effect. In the case of Canada, however, Germany is at a disadvantage. Her imports from that country only amounted to 3,000,000 marks, while she exported 15,000,000 marks' worth of goods to British North America. The results of commercial treaties with Russia and Austria-Hungary are strikingly illustrated by the new statistics. In 1892 German exports to Russia had reached a total value of 239,000,000 marks. In 1893, during the second half of which the tariff war with Russia prevailed, the value of German exports to that country fell off to the figure of 185,000,000 marks. After the commercial treaty came into force, in March, 1894, the rise in exports to Russia was constant, and the past year they reached a total of 364,000,000 marks. To Austria the amount of German exports in 1891, the year before the conclusion of the commercial treaty, was 348,000,000 marks. It rose in 1892, the first year of the commercial treaty to 377,000,000 marks, and last year to 477,000,000 marks,-N. Y. Post.

A Phenomenal Island.

A most phenomenal island is that of Bornholm, in the Baltic, belonging to Denmark. It is famous for its geological peculiarities, consisting as it does almost entirely of magnetite, and its magnetic influence is not only very well known to the navigators of those waters, but also much feared by them, on account of its influence on the magnetic needles, which makes the steering of a ship correctly a matter of much difficulty. In fact, this influence is felt even at a distance of miles, and, being sighted by mariners on the Baltic, they at once discontinue steering their course by the needle and turn, instead, to the well-known lighthouses and other holds to direct their craft. Between Bornholm and the mainland there is also a bank of rock under water which is very dangerous to navigation, and because of its being constantly submerged vessels have been frequently wrecked at that point. The peculiar fact in this case is that the magnetic influence of this ore bank is so powerful that a magnetic needle suspended freely in sonat over the bank will point down, and if not disturbed will remain in a perfectly perpendicular line.-Chicago Chronicle.

Her Idea of It.

A Hudson (N. Y.) lady recently took into her household a 12-year-old girl who had been brought up in the Brooklyn orphan asylum, expecting to train her for a servant. The child had been told that whenever she answered the deor bell and was handed a card to receive it on a small tray which was always at hand on a hall table. A few days ago, a friend coming to luncheon, Martha answered the bell, and, grasping the tray, opened the door far enough to thrust her thin little face out, at the same time demanding, in a sepulchral whisper: "Where's your ticket?" -Brooklyn Life.

A NEW GERMAN LIGHT.

Discovery That Will Revolutionize Methods of Illumination.

Consul Deuster, at Crefeld, Germany, reports to the state department of a discovery made there which it is said evolutionizes the methods of illumination. It is an incandescent gas. A single jet of ordinary size can emit a light of much more than 1,000 candle power and fine print can be read at a distance of 100 feet. The inventor says the cost for a light of 1,500 candle power is only 41/2 cents per hour, while that for an ordinary electric light of 400 candle power is 14 cents per hour.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. These pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady,

She says: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham:-It affords me great pleasure to be able to say a few words in regard to the merits of your Vegetable Compound. DOCTORS DON'T DENY IT.

The frank testimony of a famous physician.

physicians his friends. Such a remedy was what they had looked for, and they were prompt to appreciate its merits and prescribe it. Perhaps no medicine-known as a patent medicine-is so generally administered and prescribed by physicians as Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla for blood diseases, and diseases of the skin that indicate a tainted condition of the blood. Experience has proved it to be a specific in such diseases, and sores of long standing, old ulcers, chronic rheumatism, and many other like forms of disease have yielded to the persevering use of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla after other medicines had utterly failed. The testimonials received from physicians to the value of this remedy would fill a volume. Here is one leaf signed by Rich'd H. Lawrence, M. D., Baltimore, Md.

"It affords me pleasure to bear testimony to the success which your preparation of Sarsaparilla has had in the treatment of cutaneous and other diseases arising from a vitiated condition of the blood. Were it cured of long-standing complaints simply by the administration of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaat Catonsville, near this city. She had been | for it.

When Dr. Ayer announced his Sarsapa- afflicted with the rheumatism for three rilla to the world, he at once found the years, and had taken as she had informed me, more than one hundred dollars' worth of medicine to obtain relief, yet without any beneficial result. I advised her to try a bottle of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla and told her that if it failed to do her good, I would refund the money. A short time after-ward, I learned that it had cured her, and a neighbor of hers similarly afficted was also entirely relieved of his complaint by its use. This is the universal result of the administration of your Sarsaparilla. It is without exception, the best blood purifier with which I am acquainted."

There is no other similar medicine can show a similar record. Others have imitated the remedy. They can't imitate the record. Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has the friendship of the physician and the favor of the family, because it cures. It fulfills all promises made for it. It has healed thousands of people of the most malignant diseases that can mutilate mankind. Nothing has ever superceded it and nothing ever will until a medicine is made necessary, I might give you the names of that can show a record of cures greater in at least fifty individuals who have been number and equal in wonder to those that can show a record of cures greater in wrought by Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
